STEM Experiments Showcase by Deonar Students!

In the heart of Mumbai's slums, where aspirations often struggle against the harsh realities of life, a unique initiative—STEM—brought a wave of transformation. This project, facilitated by DBM India in collaboration with Aspire for Her and funded by Burns & McDonnell, aimed to bridge the gap in science education for underprivileged students. Conducted across three schools, the initiative provided hands-on science experiments to 192 students who had never before experienced practical applications of their textbooks.

The primary goal of the STEM project was to cultivate curiosity, remove the fear of science, and instill confidence in students by offering experiential learning.

By conducting live experiments in physics, chemistry, and biology, the program helped students develop a deeper understanding of scientific concepts and encouraged them to consider science-related career paths.

The STEM project by DBM India has proven that access to quality education and practical learning can change lives. By giving underprivileged students the opportunity to engage with science firsthand, we have taken a step toward breaking the barriers that limit their aspirations. This project has not only imparted knowledge but has also planted the seeds of confidence and ambition in young minds.
